ATTACKS BIG BOLLS

of the opinion that the large bolls could not be punctured, but this is proved to be wrong.

Scores of instances of weevil damage could be written, but we take one as a sample. Last Sunday Arthur Capel went into a field of cotton near his father's home in Black Jack township, some seven miles northwest of Rockingham, and in a space not 12 feet square picked nearly a gallon of large bolls that were punctured and had weevils within; and this same cotton that was nearly shoulder high had new squares on it in plenty; but the weevil worked on both. The five-acre field that gave prospect of making a bale to the acre (from its luxuriant looks) will hardly make more than a bale to the five acres.

On Monday a farmer from above Ellerbe was in town exhibiting a large stalk of fine looking cotton.
Asked whether he had any weevils on his place, he replied, "not much," and apparently was not worried. A citizen thereupon casually picked a number of apparently sound looking fully developed bolls from the stalk and found them punctured and filled with weevils. And numbers of bolls of that stalk were infested.

And so the story goes.

Train Your Child to Save Money

THERE are many spendthrifts in this world, but it isn't always the spendthrift himself who is most to blame.

Adults are generally the result of their early training. If they are taught the value of saving money while young they will continue the habit of saving in after years. If they are allowed to "Make it Fly" as a child the chances are there will be nothing left to fly when they reach the decline of life.

A savings account in this bank is one of the best teachers your child can have, regardless of its age. Open an account for it now, and teach it while the teaching is best. A dollar starts them on the road to thrift.

How Wallace Was Killed.

Last week's Post-Dispatch told of the death at Kansas City, Missouri, on August 15th of Mack L. Wallace, son of C. W. Wallace, of Ellerbe.
Since then we have been able to get more details of the young man's death. It seems he had been working with the Missouri Pacific Ry. for a month as special agent. He and another special agent, J. L.
Gave, were standing at one end of a string of coal cars; they were sharpening their knives against the drawhead of a car. A switch engine approached from the other end of the cars and coupled up, the process causing the cars to suddenly lurch forward. Gave managed to jump in time, but young Wallace was not so fortunate. The cars knocked him down, the wheels completely severing his body in two places. A belt buckle on his trousers and a bunch of keys were also cut into pieces.

Ormond Meacham, of Roberdel, who was taking a mechanical course in a training school nearby, identified the body as that of his friend.
He and a special agent of the railroad accompanied the remains to Ellerbe, they reaching there Saturday afternoon. The funeral was conducted at Ellerbe Sunday afternoon, conducted by the three preachers of Ellerbe.

Mr. Wallace left home about January 1st, going to Zuni, New Mexico, where he stayed with his brother for some time. He later went to Kansas City and took a course of two months in the auto school, and about a month ago began work with the Missouri Pacific as a special agent. He was in the discharge of his duties in the railroad yards, in what is known as "East Bottoms," just outside of Kansas City, when the accident and his death occurred.
